Webb-Martin Leaves Cultural Heritage Commission

by Felicia Wood

After nine years on the Cultural Heritage Commission, Judy Webb-Martin is stepping-down.

"It's time," she said. "It's been nine years and we really need to move people through there." Judy's term had expired in June, but she remained on the Commission until a suitable replacement could be found. She explained that because the Cultural Heritage Commission has very specific requirements for its commissioners, it has been difficult to find people to serve on it.

Judy Webb-Martin

Her replacement is attorney Robert Proctor, who has lived in Sierra Madre for several years. His office on Marengo in Pasadena is a converted bungalow. "We're still looking for an architect, but I think he [Robert Proctor] will do a great job." Judy commented.

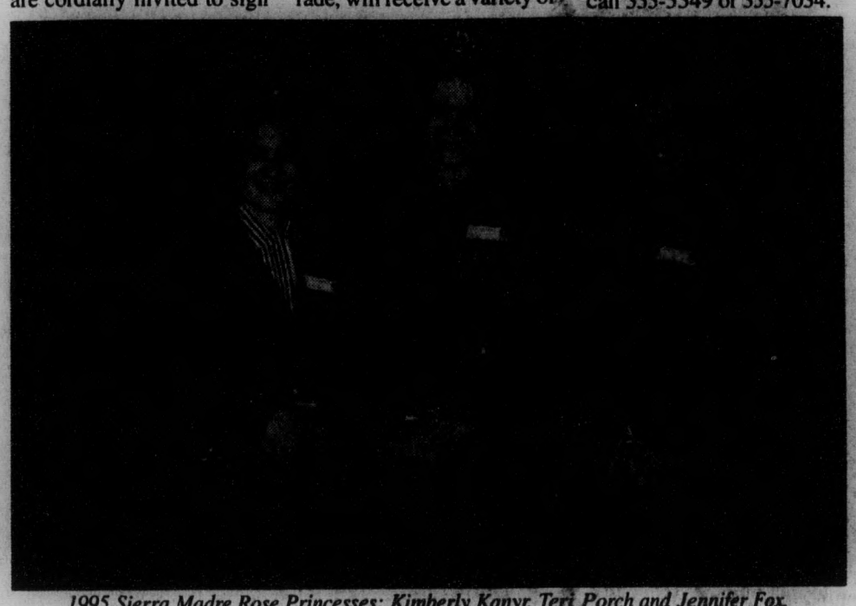

Councilmember Jim Hester is familiar with proctor on a professional level - they have been opposing attorneys in the courtroom. "I've known Bob Proctor professionally for 10-12 years," Hester said. "I've always known him to be an honest and ethical lawyer.

"Anybody who has ever seen his office in Pasadena will understand his committment to cultural preservation." Hester added, describing Proctor's Craftsman Bungalow office.

Although happy to be stepping down, Judy still plans to be very active in the City, "I will still be available for consultation, but kind of on the sidelines."

Nursing Facility Largest SM Employer

by Phyllis Chapman

Sierra Madre may be a small community but it can still boast the highly rated Sierra Madre Skilled Nursing Facility. With a staff of almost 60 it is the largest employer in Sierra Madre and an important contributor to the economy of the city.

Sharon Kurtz, administrator of Sierra Madre Skilled Nursing Facility.

Sharon Kurtz, administrator, says the facility maintains a very busy schedule, but makes every effort to provide a caring, homelike environment. Many patients who enter the facility require sub-acute type nursing care and are able to go home after a short stay. There is also a steady list of long-term care residents, all the responsibility of a very qualified staff. Always family members are encouraged to visit and often invited for special activities.

In March, 1994, a state of the art rehabilitation unit was opened and has excellent therapists. Therapy is part of the daily routine. Sally Zapata has been head of dietary since 1975 overseeing nutritious, appetizing meals. These can be enjoyed in pleasant dining rooms or, weather permitting outdoors in a tree and flower surrounded patio.

Things are kept perking for the patients with a seven-day a week recreational program, well planned by Activity director Ligia Rubilotta. Patients may participate if they choose. Musical programs, exercise classes, games, movies, are just some of the choices. Local churches are very supportive with religious programs. Special festivities mark birthdays and holidays.

Pets have always been a wonderful therapy for the patients and there are regular visits by area humane societies and there have been resident cats at the facility. Kurtz has an adorable new cocker spaniel puppy named "Daisy." She brought this charmer to work with her for the patients to enjoy.

Kurtz has been administrator since May, 1993 and her administrative background began in 1981. She is presently serving as president of the Pasadena/San Gabriel Chapter of the California Assoc. of Health Care Facilities.

Terry Little is Social Service Designate and Discharge Planner. He becomes well acquainted with the patients, their moods, personalities, their needs, etc. If they are ready to go home he will evaluate the home environment, how to help patients function when they get home and their needs there. Often this is a team effort with HMO's.

Many years ago, Dr. George Groth, Sr. dreamed of having a hospital in Sierra Madre. In 1920, he and his sister, Dr. Mary Groth, opened a general type hospital in a building at 122 N. Baldwin. It was his son, Dr. George Groth, Jr. who would really carry out the dream. In 1953 the Sierra Madre Medical Center was built, hospital construction followed and in 1957 the facility was opened as an acute and intensive care hospital.

In 1960 young Dr. Groth decided to relocate his practice and family to Lake San Marcos and sold the property to the Sierra Madre Community Hospital Foundation for $542,500. The Foundation paid off the mortgage in 1978. The facility continued to operate as a 26 bed acute hospital. In 1972 a skilled nursing wing was added.

With the competition of large hospitals in the area, in time the acute section began experiencing a very low census with many beds standing empty. On the other hand the 23 bed skilled nursing wing was being used to capacity and with a waiting list.

In Sept., 1983, the Sierra Madre Community Hospital, suffering financial problems, affiliated with Methodist Hospital and became an all-skilled nursing facility. As

by Felicia Wood

Comparing the overgrown ficus trees on South Baldwin to the neatly trimmed ones in the downtown area, it is difficult to believe they were planted at the same time.

Resident Steve Murphy believes that the trees represent a major city problem. "They are so overgrown, the street sweepers can't get to the curb." Murphy claims that the trees have been ignored by the City and are now tearing up the sidewalks.

After calling city hall, Murphy said, "They told me that the Tree Commission decided the job was too big for our City crews, but last week I saw them trimming the trees near the freeway signs in Arcadia."

The City says that they are well aware of the problem with the trees on South Baldwin. "We are getting bids right now from outside contractors," said Public Works Director, John Davidson. "We hope to award a bid within two weeks and have the work completes within a month and a half."

Davidson explained that the reason the downtown trees were better maintained was that they were part of assessment district funding. The other trees, though on City property, have been trimmed less frequently and have become overgrown. The downtown trees have been kept under control by funds from a 1972 Act providing special monies for the business district upkeep.

Pedestrian Struck On SM Blvd.

by Felicia Wood

An injury accident occurred Thursday, September 14th at approximately 8:08 am when a moving car struck a pedestrian as she was crossing the street.

Sergent Wayne Bailey reported that the victim was a 50-year-old female, Sierra Madre resident. She was crossing the Sierra Madre Blvd. at Windsor when she was struck by an auto driving eastbound. The driver was a 38 year-old female, Pasadena resident.

The victim was taken to Arcadia Methodist Hospital and was later released with minor injuries. Sergeant Bailey believed that she was bruised and may have sustained a bloody nose and a sprained wrist, but otherwise was not seriously injured.

At this time, the Police believe the primary cause to be inattention on the part of the driver, possibly coupled with glare from the sunlight. The victim was 28 feet out into the street when she was struck and seemed to have been trying to use the crosswalk.

Meyer Named Healthcare Systems

James N. Gamble, Chairman of the Board, announced that Frederick C. Meyer has been elected President and CEO of Southern California Healthcare Systems (SCHS), replacing Allen W. Mathies, Jr., M.D., who is retiring September 30. Dr. Mathies has been President of SCHS since it was formed in December 1992 as the parent corporation for Huntington Memorial Hospital, Pasadena and Methodist Hospital, Arcadia. Prior to that Dr. Mathies served as President of Huntington Memorial Hospital and as Dean, University of Southern California School of Medicine, from 1974 to 1985.

Frederick C. Meyer has been named the new President of the parent corporation for Huntington Memorial Hospital.

Frederick Meyer, 56, who has been SCHS' Chief Operating Officer, was formerly President of Methodist Hospital in Arcadia from 1985 to 1993. Previous to coming to Southern California, Meyer was Executive Vice President of Pacific Presbyterian Medical Center in San Francisco, and President of Health Pacific Group, its for-profit subsidiary. He studied pre-medicine at Pomona College, Claremont and holds a B.S. in Public Health and an MBA from San Jose State University. He served at 1st Lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force's Manned Space Program in Los Angeles in the mid-1960s.

SCHS has grown since 1993 through acquisition of Glendora Community Hospital, now-renamed Huntington East Valley Hospital; starting the Huntington Medical Foundation, a primary care practice group of forty-five physicians; expanding its IPA physician network to nearly 700 physicians in the San Gabriel Valley; consolidating functions and programs leading to over $15 million in cost reductions; and starting innovative centers of excellence in Cancer and Heart Care. SCHS currently is in due diligence un-

Slander as a Fine Art

by Harry Martin

Character assassination is probably as old as speech itself, and most certainly it goes back to that time when men competed with each other for elective office. Politicians learned early the importance of words, and one of the most political orators of all time was Marcus Tullius Cicero, and he had this to say, more than 2000 years ago..." nothing seems to me a nobler ambition than to be able to hold by your eloquence the minds of men, to captivate their wills, to move them to and fro in whatever direction you please." Like many great orators to come, his eloquence was not enough to save what he wanted most. With his murder at age 55, the Roman Republic entered the long twilight. His, unfortunately, was just one of many lost causes.

One of America's greatest orators and statemen, Daniel Webster, was subjected to what was perhaps the most vicious attack in American history, and all because he was fighting for what he thought was absolutely necessary...the preseration of the Union. As early as 1820 there had been talk of "nullification", but by 1850 secession had become a distinct reality. Webster, in his famous speech March 7, 1850, knowingly sacrificed his lifelong ambition to be President, not only because he wished to see the country survive, but he realized there could be no such thing as a peacful separation.

For his efforts he was buried under an avalanche of calumny. The South greeted his speech with both skepticism and contempt, but in the rest of the country, especially in New England, it was received with rage. Some of the most respected people in the country heaped abuse upon him, some of them the most respected literary men of their time. Horace Mann said, "Webster is a fallen angel". And to James Russell Lowell he was, "the most meanly and treacherous man I ever heard of". Whittier called him "fallen star" and even Longfellow joined in the chorus of condemnation.

Daniel Webster spent the next two years traveling around the natin, still pleading for reconciliation. But it was of no avail; there was to much bitterness on both sides, and the die had been cast. In two years, broken in health and spirit, he died, his two ambitions unfullfilled...saving the Union and the presidency. His prediction of a bloody conflict came true, fought with a ferocity no one could have foreseen.

Of course, Webster was not the first victim of political assassination...it was prevalent in Colonial times and at the birth of the Nation. One of the early targets of abuse was John Quincy Adams. Like his father, he was a strict Puritan, and all of his life wrote to his father, John Adams, for advice. His political career started in the Massachusetts Legislature where he at once got into trouble with his own party. A prominent Federalist said, "A curse on the stripling how he apes his sire". Despite his differences with friends and party stalwarts he was appointed to the Senate, where his troubles multiplied. His creed was a strange one for a politician...."the magistrate is not the servant of his own desires, or of the people, but to his God". No one running for office today would be so brash. He would know instant ridicule.

There were many others in American history, among them Sam Houston of Texas. A military hero in the Mexican War, he helped establish the independence of Texas as a sovereign state and was its first president and later, its first Senator in Washington. He was a hero among heroes, but when he refused to stray from what he thought were solemn principles, the wrath of his erstwhile supporters fell in a political avalanche. On November 10, 1857, he was dismissed from his office as Governor of Texas. In a brief autobiography he said, "This book will lose me some friends, but if it lost me all and gained none, in God's name, as a free man, I would publish it".

American history is loaded with calumny of the worst sort, and many honest, decent men who have stood by their convictions and have been vilified. Thankfully, there have been other jibes of a whimsical nature, and really hurt no one. Benjamin Franklin, a master of roquish wit, had this to say about John Adams, "Mr. Adams is a decent man, a kind man, but sometimes he acts like an old maid". One hundred years later President McKinley was fond of saying, "I always have my ear to the ground". The irascible "Uncle Joe" Cannon of the Senate, could not resist..."That's why it's always full of grasshoppers!".

To The Sierra Madre News:

A friend sent me a clipping about the reconstruction of the Japanese garden built at Sierra Madre School in 1930. I remember that garden well, from passing it every day as I went in to kindergarten and the early grades of school in the later 1930s. I am so glad it is being restored.

But I also remember the hostile tempers that led to the destruction of the garden. Just after the war my father was politically active in reintegrating the Nisei into local communities, and whole families would come and stay with us, sometimes for months at a time. As a result, we had rotten eggs thrown at our house (321 E. Grandview).

That was painful, but it was not my political awakening. I can remember precisely when and where that occurred. It was when Roosevelt died. Several of my schoolmates were dancing with joy in the playground. I remember going home in tears: "Our President has died and they are glad!" My mother explained a few facts of life to me on that sad day.

The stamp I am placing on this letter recalls a better memory to mind and brings the subject back to gardens. When I was in kindergarten or first grade, a classmate died, a friend with whom I often played, and our class had a tree-planting ceremony in her memory. Perhaps that tree is still there, all these years later, half-a-century old now, on the lawn south of the kindergarten room.

Yours sincerely,
Marijane Stone

Dear Merritt...

Grade Woes

Dear Merritt...

My parents continue to pressure me about my grades. I have always stayed between a 3.8 and 3.6 grade average, but they constantly tell me that it's not enough. My brother got a 3.0 Last semester and they treated him like a genius. I feel that I'll never do well enough. What should I do?

Pressured

Dear Pressured, It sounds as though your parent's have higher expectations for you than your brother based on what they feel you are capable of achieving. Find the right time and sit down with them and explain that your GPA is very good by anyone's standards and that you are hurt because instead of acknowledging this, all they do is pressure you. If you are uncomfortable talking with them, write them a note expressing the same thing.

Fast Driver

Dear Merritt...

I have a problem with a friend that drives too fast. I don't know if I should say something or just stay quiet.

Undecided

Dear Undecided, It's a good idea to tell your friend, just for the record, that when he drives too fast you worry about him hurting himself or others. That way they know that you care but you're not telling them what to do. If he continues to drive too fast, it's best not to get in the car with him. Then he'll surely get a clue.

Concerned Friend

Dear Merritt...

I've had this very close friend for the past four years. When we were freshmen we experienced the party scene and really liked it. Junior year I controlled myself, but she got out of control. Now if she's not on something she can't function. I want to help but I don't want to feel like her mother. What should I do?

Concerned

Dear Concerned, It is important that you try to help your friend, but don't feel like you can solve the problem for her. First, try talking to her and see if she is willing to admit there's a problem. Then encourage her to call a drug or alcohol organization. If she won't, you may need intervention. Try getting a "cool" teacher, someone who has conquered a similar problem, or an older sister or brother involved. But whatever you do, do something,

Words of Wisdom From the Young and the Old

I noted in the column last week that I've been a little testy lately with the heat. Since I quit teaching I have no reason to like summer.

In spite of my testiness, some things struck me funny this week, I'll share a couple with you.

My friend took her granddaughters to Knotts Berry Farm as a treat before starting school. Before leaving home everyone took the standard pre-trip potty break.

The day was hot, hot, hot. Grandma had taken lots of bottled water but they had to buy even more, plus soft drinks and sno-cones. In other words, they drank gallons of liquids and sweat profusely. No one asked to go to the bathroom all day.

Grandma became aware of that fact late in the afternoon, She said, "You realize girls, none of us have gone to the bathroom since we left home." The girls shook their heads and commented at being a little surprised about that.

Grandma, not being one to miss an opportunity to educate, launched into an explanation of how our bodies work: fluid intake & outgo, kidneys, sweat glands, etc.

The younger granddaughter's eyes widened. She looked down at her sweaty little arms and cried, "Ooooo Grandma, that's gross. You mean that's tinkle?" I agree, that's gross.

Personally, I'm not into taking sweat provoking trips. I head for an air-conditioned oasis whenever possible. I took my grandnephew on a shopping trip in the Mall.

We bought clothes and a few special school supplies in readiness for starting kindergarten. When I told him he could buy a toy for being such a good boy, he thought that was a grand idea. But, he couldn't make up his mind. We went from aisle to aisle and back again. In exasperation I said, "Bryan, you have to pick one now. My feet are killing me."

Without a second's hesitation he said, "Oh, I'm sorry Aunt Dorothy, You know sometimes my feet hurt too, but I find the best thing to do is just keep going." Had I maybe taught him that on a better day?

The best of all was the day I went to lunch with an 84 year old former teaching colleague. She told me of her plans to substitute in the L.A. schools again this year. I said, "How can you do that?" She answered, "It's easy. I just turn off my hearing aid when I go in."

Wedding Announcement and Sequel

"Romance Among the Roses" (SMN Jan 95)

As the sun was setting behind them, Judith Lynn Hayami and John F. Kennedy exchanged marriage vows on Saturday, September 9, at Crescent Bay Point Park in Laguna Beach. The couple met six years ago by chance while walking downtown in Sierra Madre. They were the design team behind "Playing Around", the Sierra Madre Rose Float Association entry in the 1995 Tournament of Roses Parade. John proposed to Judy just after midnight New Year's Day while they were decorating the float.

John was raised in Sierra Madre, the youngest of six children in the family of Leo F. and Theresa Kennedy. Judy is also from a family of six. Her parents are Walter and Miwako Hayami of San Gabriel .

At the double-ring ceremony, the bride wore a short, fitted dress in candlelight brocade under a matching bolero jacket trimmed in Venetian lace. Her mixed bouquet, arranged by her father, included lilies, roses, gerbera daisies, eustoma and other individually selected flowers brought to the wedding by each of eleven "nieces and nephews-to-be". She was escorted into the ceremony by her mother and father. Matron of Honor was the bride's sister, Nancy (Mrs. Michael) Arbogast. Michael Kennedy, the groom's brother, served as his Best Man.

John and Judy are at home in La Verne. They will soon be leaving for a two-week honeymoon in Japan. Upon their return they will join other SMRFA volunteers working toward the completion of "Dreams of Yesteryear", their second float design, for the 1996 Rose Parade.

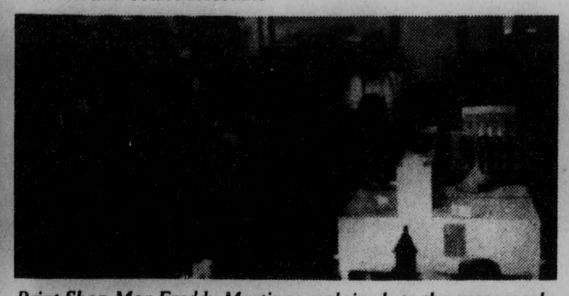

John and Judy Kennedy found love among the roses working on the Sierra Madre Rose Float.

The Sierra Madre News was pleased to have some special visitors, Cub Scout Troop 122, Den 6 last Thursday. Den 6 got to learn where how a newspaper is made and even got to make their own version of a newspage to take home.

What is their favorite section of the paper? SPORTS!!! Scouts Sam Hyrin, Michael Brown, Michael Pearce, Jonathan Chan, Jonathan MacNeil and Sean McKenzie love every sport imaginable. They are looking forward to seeing their teams in the News when they next play.

The boys also toured the Print Shop where they learned how cards are printed and cut. Print Shop Manager Freddy Martinez explained how the press works and how to clean it. The Scouts were most impressed with the paper cutter that knifed through the stacks of cards.

Sierra Madre Businessman Involved In Seminar Targeting Group Leadership Skills

Gain the focus, the mental skills, and the personal empowerment needed to lead others into a healthier, happier, and stronger future through community involvement. Attend a one-day conference at Occidental College in Eagle Rock designed especially for those involved in community based organizations.

"Personal Breakthroughs in Group Leadership," scheduled from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, September 30, will use the books The Bell Curve and The Spirit of Community to provide a framework for discussion on how to develop and improve personal leadership skills that will last a lifetime.

Involved in the planning for the event and a featured speaker is local businessman Steve Garrett. He is a member of the Sierra Madre Chamber of Commerce and is past Governor of Rotary district #5300. Garrett says, "This seminar is a call to action for all of us who believe that we can make a positive impact in our community by getting personally involved at the local group level." He notes that the upcorning workshop is ideal for a wide range of participants - business people, educators, coaches, service club members, PTA leaders, youth leaders, all who are committed to our communities future.

"Breakthroughs" is the 28th seminar that Oxy has sponsored since the program was created over five years ago. Past seminars have included such diverse topics as political theory of the Bible, the application of Covey's 7 Habits of Highly Effective People, and home brewing and beer tasting. The seminar series was spearheaded by another local resident, Merrill Francis, an Alhambra real estate attorney for over 30 years. As past president of the San Gabriel Valley Bar Association, San Marino Rotary, and the Alhambra Chamber of Commerce, he has come to believe that it is this personal commitment to our community that empowers us to "defend and extend the revolutionary tradition of the American middle class." When Garrett was asked why he is involved with Francis in producing this leadership seminar, he replied, "Merrill is one of the most interesting men I have met."

Steve Garrett

The fee for the seminar is $65 and includes the book The Spirit of Community, welcome coffee and donuts, and lunch in the Oxy quad. For more information and registration materials, call the Oxy Alumni office at (213) 259-2601 .

Local Market Checks Out Chamber

by Felicia Wood

Even the late summer heat couldn't keep people away from last Thursday's Chamber of Commerce Mixer at Howie's Ranch Market. New faces and old, as well as ones that have been on vacation all summer filled the parking lot.

Howie's owner, Kathy Picano said, "We had a great time sponsoring the mixer and want to do it again next year." Since the crowd was larger than anticipated, they had to scramble at the last minute to add more tables and chairs which were greatly appreciated by their guests.

The reason for the high turnout was undoubtedly the great Howie's food. The hosts provided beautiful deli trays and fruit bowls, complete with cheeses and rolls which enticed people to come back for seconds and thirds. "I really want to compliment Tony and Jesus from the deli for the beautiful platters," Kathy noted, adding "And Bob Q. for really coordinating and putting the mixer together."

Kathy Branson, Fred Copeland and Millie and Dr. Mittleman at Howie's Mixer.

Mama Pete and Celeste McCreary greet the newcomers from Orpheus Theater.

Kathy Picano, owner of Howie's Ranch Market enjoys a chance to speak with Fred Petteruto of Bob Margett's office.

The gracious hosts had to bring out extra tables and chairs for the crowd, who enjoyed the great selection and high quality of deli meats and cheeses.

This month's lucky winners: Steve Garrett, Joan Sheets, Ronald Brandley, Millie Mittleman, Judith Brandley and Mary Anne Wilder with Mike Delgatto, Kathy Picano and Bob

Moe
"Customer Satisfaction is No.1 in this shop."

"I took my 1989 Honda Accord to an out-of-town mechanic to have the timing belt changed. It ran worse than before and the mechanic said it was okay. Another mechanic told me the problem was in the ignition timing. He readjusted the belt, but it would not adjust to the factory-recommended settings. What's the problem?"

If there is no dirt or rust on the mounting bolts of the distributor, the original mechanic has set the camshaft out of time. This means that the camshaft was set a tooth too far advanced or retarded when the new belt was installed. This would affect the timing range of the distributor by as much as 22 degrees, depending on how many teeth are on the camshaft pulley. Have a mechanic recheck the camshaft timing. Let us help you.

35th Birthday for Creative Group

by Felicia Wood

One of the highlights of the Creative Arts Group's Birthday Party on Saturday, Sept. 16th was the reunion of many of its founders who gathered to honor their contribution to the arts in Sierra Madre.

The Celebration entitled "Art in the Afternoon," was interactive for all of the guests. As students, parents and attendees traveled between classrooms and studios, they had the opportunity to watch art in progress and to participate as well.

Mary Heberle, who teaches Tole Painting, demonstrated just how easy and fun art can be. "Tole Painting is for anyone," she said. "A little natural nervousness adds to the painting." She helped people make sunflower pins that they could keep as souvenirs.

Mary Wallace helped youngsters make collage insects complete with 3-D wings. Debbie Schweiner and Jeanne Lavieri taught children how to make clay gardens and Erica Nordfors helped them with mural painting. Other big hits were wire sculpture taught by David Williams and Air Brush Painting taught by George Molina Sy.

Jackie Raymond, Creative Arts Group Director and Founders Maria Stewart, Kathy Snow, Evelyn Hawkins and Mary and Bruce Wallace celebrated their 35th Birthday on Saturday!

Other instructors demonstrated their talents, from Torch Enamel Beads to Chinese Knotting. Several art pieces were on display as well, professional as well as student pieces.

Birthday Cake helped sweeten the event and the afternoon was completed with music by Al Jacobs who performed a wide range of styles to fit everyone's taste.

On Stage: Affordable Adventure

by Mary Cogsweil Baum

The Center Theater Group, which holds forth at the Mark Taper Forum in LA's Music Center is one of the most prestigious and-they claim, the most honored theater in America. This must be largely because of Gordon Davidson, whose taste and enthusiasm make it the most challenging and exciting professional theater in Los Angeles. While Davidson's choices are not always popular, they are in the class of plays that ought to be seen, almost always in the contemporary mode. A dedicated patron group and contributions both from Los Angeles itself and from the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) make possible not only superlative acting and impeccable staging but reasonable prices. If you hold a season ticket for five plays, seating in the cheaper seats (no seat in the Forum is too bad), on a weekday evening or a Saturday or Sunday matinee, you are paying under $14.00 per play.

Or you can stand in line on the day of the performance and get a half pricce ticket for unsold seats.

Or you can ask when the "pay what you can" days are and see it for even less.

The first of the Taper's 95-96 season will open on Oct. 15. It is the West Coast Premiere of "Slavs" by Tony Kushner who has just won a Pulitzer Prize and two Antoinette Perry Awards (Tonys) for the extraordinary "Angels in America", which, incidentally, appeared at the Taper last year before its Broadway triumph.

The Center Theater Group is for those who enjoy seeing the cutting edge of theater in America, whatever it may be up to.

This is not to downplay the smaller theaters who win local awards with new plays or imaginative productions of older ones. The Colony on Riverside Drive comes immediately to mind and there are others.

Now that the Blockbusters have moved out of the Ahmanson, the Ahmanson series will move out of the Doolittle, and we will have some more surprises. For instance, the Ahmanson is starting off with Leonard Berstein's "Candide", based on Voltaire's satiric novel. (I wonder it they will borrow from the best "Candide" I've ever seen which was at the aforementioned Colony.)

We live in a wonderfully rich theatrical environment which only the most chauvinistic New Yorker looks down on these days, we have any amount of acting, directing and production expertise to draw from, all of it willing and anxious to work on the live stage when logistically and financially possible. Performing live makes up for its continuous possiblity of disaster by giving an actor the direct contact with the audience that sparks real electricity and brings out the best in performance.

The San Gabriel based Music Theater of Southern California discovered this talent pool long ago and is only partly professional now. Their "Guys and Dolls" opens Oct. 6 with its amusing characters and its fifteen or so memorable songs. (where have all the tune makers gone?)

Orpheus Lyric Theatre Prepares For Its Fourth Season

Starting in early October, the auditorium at Sierra Madre Elementary School will be "alive with the sound of music" in the evenings as the members of Orpheus Lyric Theatre conduct final rehearsals for their 1995-96 season opener, the opera "La Traviata" by Giuseppe Verdi. This will be a fully-staged production, with chamber orchestra-- and, please note, Sung In English!!

This community-based theatre company was founded in late 1992 by four people-- Robert and Riccarla Roman and Henry and Barbara Ebert, with the goals of presenting quality theatre for the whole family to enjoy, at reasonable prices, and to offer a platform for singers and actors without regard to race, national origin or age. The group offers three productions each season: an opera, always sung in English, a play and a musical comedy. Open auditions are held for each production, and those without prior stage experience are encouraged to explore the many facets of stage production--especially people who enjoy singing but who may only have sung in a church choir or chorale group. Chorus members frequently find themselves promoted into small roles, and later audition for larger parts in subsequent productions.

The decision to perform all the operas in English was based on several factors: many people who are unfamiliar with the world of opera are intimidated by the idea of sitting for a whole evening listening to those on stage singing in a foreign language, and wondering just what the story is all about. Orpheus Lyric Theatre feels strongly that opera in this country should be performed in English whenever and wherever possible.

The 1995-96 season will continue with "Steel Magnolias" in February and another Gilbert & Sullivan operetta,"Princess Ida," in May. Ticket prices are $12 for adults, $9 for senior citizens and $7 for students (through college-age); discounts are available for groups of 10 or more, as well as for season tickets.

Last season the Sixth Grade classes served refreshments at the intermissions as part of their fund-raising efforts for the restoration of the Japanese Garden on campus. We feel very fortunate to be able to perform in the beautiful auditorium at the school, and hope to be there for a long time to come.

Temperatures rise, Tempers flair

over Santa Anita Entertainment Complex

by Sean Mclain Brown

In a heated exercise of democracy, a 35 year resident and spokesperson for Neighbors for Arcadia, voiced the organization's concerns and criticized the City Council at the September 19 meeting, for not providing adequate information in regards to the proposed Santa Anita Entertainment Complex.

The N.F.A. is a grassroots organization founded by Dr. Robert S. Ellison. This organization is primarily concerned with what infringements—if any—the Santa Anita Entertainment Complex would impose upon the safety and moral standard of living within Arcadia.

An N.F.A. member, Gino Roselli, forcefully addressed the council and said, "I don't think it's unreasonable to want to know what specific details will be included in the plan."

A city official calmly explained that the necessary details were not available because Santa Anita Enterprises had not yet provided them for review to the council. The council member added that as soon as the completed plan is introduced, it will be made available to the public for review.

Founder of N.F.A., Dr. Robert S. Ellison, proposed that the Santa Anita Entertainment Complex be put on the city's ballot. Ellison said, "It is our intent—if necessary—to form a petition so this item can be put on a ballot."

In a unanimous vote, the council approved authorization for the installation of temporary banners for the upcoming Gardens of the World show at the Los Angeles County Arboretum in Arcadia.

Executive Director of the Arboretum, Judy Morse, thanked the council for their support and generous help in promoting the highly acclaimed garden show. The Arboretum expects 40,000 visitors hailing from as far North as Santa Barbara and as far South as San Diego.

In light of the police department's highly successful P.A.C.E. 2000 and D.A.R.E. programs, Officers Cervantes and Caylor were awarded with certificates of appreciation for their dedication and hard work in making the programs a success.

The P.A.C.E. — Peaceful Arcadia Community Effort and D.A.R.E—Drug Abuse Resistance Effort's main goal is to educate and provide for a strategic long-term peace enforcement plan through community involvement. 9 year old pianist, Karen Spurney, was awarded a certificate for Outstanding Achievement. Karen won the bi-state Primary division title in a contest sponsored by the Pasadena Exchange Club.

The Exchange Club, founded for preventing child abuse, promotes this talent compitition every every year.

The City Council will reconvene September 26.

Arcadia Transit Day

Arcadia Dial-A-Ride, L.A. County's largest municipally operated demand response transit system (carrying over 160,000 passengers per year), is undergoing two significant changes that will have a positive effect on the overall operation.

The first is a change in the name from "Dial-A-Ride" to "Arcadia Transit." Along with the name change comes a re-design of the corporate logo and graphics, which have been modernized to better reflect the purpose of the transit system. Nine new vehicles containing the updated graphics have been purchased and are already on the road.

Secondly, in an effort to simplify the process of paying for rides, beginning Oct. 2, senior citizens and disabled persons will no longer be required to purchase advance tickets to receive the reduced rate of $.25. Instead, they will now be able to pay at the time of boarding provided they have been issued a City identification card. Identification cards require a photograph of the passenger and are only issued through the City's Senior Services Office.

Please call 574-5130 if you have any questions about how to obtain a card. Previously purchased senior citizen and disabled tickets will be good through Dec. 31, 1995.

To celebrate the "grand opening" of Arcadia Transit, the City is declaring Sept. 27 as Arcadia Transit Day. As part of the day's festivities, free rides will be offered all day long and special giveaways will be provided for passengers on this special day.

Arcadia Transit provides public curb-to-curb transportation to all locations within City limits. (Vehicles with wheelchair lifts are available; passengers should specify any special needs when calling for a pick-up).

Rides are available between the hours of 7 a.m. and 9:30 p.m. on weekdays, and 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. on weekends. Fares are $.25 for senior citizens and disabled persons, and $.75 for all others. The average response time is 30 minutes. To make arrangements for a pick-up, call 445-2211 (TDD users call 445-2522).

Downtown 2000: An Update

By Lynne Eodice

Work on the Downtown 2000 project has resumed. As the strike levied against Sully Miller by the Operating Engineer's Union local #12 continues, Seqel Construction has stepped in and is now performing the emergency work.

Economic Development Administrator, Pete Kinnahan, makes one point very clear. "We didn't fire or suspend Sully Miller from the job—Seqel Construction is only doing the emergency work," he says. As the delay caused by this strike "constitutes an urgent threat to the public health, safety, and welfare," of the City, Seqel was called in after a special Council meeting on Aug. 22.

So, beginning on Aug. 28, after a delay of several weeks, the new construction firm is working on curb, gutter, sidewalk and other storm drainage systems that could cause problems once the rainy season begins.

Oct. 2 is the scheduled completion date for this work, which encompasses Huntington Drive between Santa Anita and Second Ave., First Ave. between Huntington Drive and Wheeler, and Huntington Drive between San Rafael and the east branch of the Arcadia Wash.

As the labor dispute between the Operating Engineers and Sully Miller has not yet been resolved, the assignment of the remainder of the unfinished construction is yet to be decided. "We would have liked to have more information on the progress of their negotiations," notes Kinnahan.

The construction schedule was a tight one to begin with, but a lot of this drainage work may have been finished. "We might have had the whole north end of Huntington Drive done by now," says Kinnahan.

In terms of the merchants in the downtown area, "We appreciate their patience," Kinnahan states, noting that they are the ones hardest hit by the inconvenience the strike imposes.

37th Annual Greek Festival

An exciting celebration of Greek culture comes to the Santa Anita Race Track on Saturday, Sept. 23 and Sunday, Sept. 24.

Over 40,000 people are expected to attend the 37th annual event, which will feature traditional Greek food, dance and music, cultural events and markets all set in a re-creation of Greek villages. St. Anthony's Greek Orthodox Church is the sponsor of the 37th annual Greek Festival. Few things in the world are as satisfying as food from the Greek Isles. The Greek Festival features authentic, homemade dishes carefully prepared by the people of St. Anthony's Greek Orthodox Church, the festival's sponsor. Some of the selections include Calamari (squid), Souvlakia (marinated lamb and chicken), Moussaka (eggplant and meat casserole), Spanakopites (filo pastry dough filled with spinach and cheese) and Gyro sandwiches.

Racetrack Revelations...Six Years With Superhorse John Henry

by Elaine Marfoglia

"On the racetrack he was all business. He was definitely the smartest horse I've ever been on..." (trainer Lewis Cenicola)

John Henry was, without a doubt, an incredibly great racehorse. When he was retired from racing in 1986, his reputation preceded him, as "the greatest horse that ever was - money won, and everything else." He'd done it all - won whatever he could possibly win. People in the business dream of a horse like John Henry. For most, it remains just that - a dream.

So, how could it happen? How did John Henry, an obscure $25,000 purchase, became one of the greatest - thoroughbreds of all time? No doubt, the answers to those questions best lie with thoroughbred trainer, Lewis Cenicola, who, during their six year relationship as superstar and exercise rider, when John Henry made history, was his closest companion. I guess the beginning of my association with John Henry actually began at the start of the 1980 Santa Anita winter meeting" recalled Lewis, "when I went to work as exercise rider for trainer Ron McAnally. He already had John in the barn, but another kid was getting on him, and John wasn't really a star yet. Afterward, at Hollywood Park, the other kid missed a day. He didn't show up, and Ron said to me, I think you'd better gallop the horse. He went real nice for me - I really liked the way he galloped. But, then the other kid showed up the next day, and it wasn't until the fall of that year, during the 1980 Oak Tree meeting, that I became John Henry's regular exercise rider." "Of course, John won the "Oak Tree Invitational" that year, and in early 1981 we started working for the upcoming "Santa Anita Handicap," which, of course, he also won. Everything we did just seemed to click that year. No horse could beat him on the grass...and he was 9 years old. I traveled all over the country with him, and, I guess, if statistics were taken, it would probably be confirmed that I rode more miles on John Henry than anyone else did. Still, it took at least a year and a half for him to really get to like me, that is, to accept me. The fact is, John Henry is not a very friendly horse. Furthermore, he can be, often is, downright mean. Very few people can get really close to him. Yet, when I was on his back, everything was different."

"On the racetrack, he was all business. He was definitely the smartest horse I've ever been on, and I've been on a lot of nice horses...big money winners, but, somehow, John Henry just stands out above all of them. It was a combination of things, like how he felt under me - he was so smooth to ride. He never got excited on the track either. If there was a loose horse, he'd make a point of avoiding him - wouldn't try to run into him like some other horses might. He always seemed to be watching everything around him. You'd never have to worry if you were on him. He had a lot of class that way. He definitely had a very special personality."

"But, on the ground, that was an entirely different matter. His stall was his domain, and very few humans dared violate it with their presence. He'd try to kick me, or, somehow let me know I wasn't welcome. It wasn't until well into 1982 that he'd allow me to come into his stall without trying to hurt me...but, to tell you the truth, I was never totally at ease doing it until probably about the end of 1985...it took that long. Old age finally mellowed him quite a bit, and those who were closest to him over the years could, at least, approach him without fear of being kicked or bitten."

"I remember once, when his owner, Sam Rubin, decided to visit John Henry in his stall after a race. Mr. Rubin first looked into the stall, and suddenly hollered, 'Where's John - he's not in his stall - someone stole him!' Then he took one step into the stall, and the next thing he saw were huge teeth coming at him - imagine, his owner wasn't even welcome! John had a habit of finding a wall or corner of his stall where you couldn't easily see him, and leaning against it most of the time. He didn't take to leaning over the doorway too much, like a lot if horses do."

"But, when I was on his back, you could have blindfolded me, and I would have trusted him to take me anywhere. I had that much confidence in John when I was in the saddle. He really hated the saddling paddock before a race, though. We had to aim him at a wall or corner, or he'd try to run over us while we were saddling him. Once the saddle was in place he was just fine." "John liked crowds. He seemed to enjoy the people looking at him and taking pictures. There was just enough of the ham in him. He'd stop and look around, as if to give his fans a chance to look at him and snap pictures. Of course, as he got older, he definitely became much more relaxed, and it was only the last year or so that I was finally able to feel completely at ease around him. I guess it took him that long to get to the point where he really knew I was his friend, and that I cared about him."

"As John got older, I found a pet name for him - I started calling him Pappy. I'd walk in the shedrow talking, and John would hear my voice, and he'd lean over the doorway of his stall and start yowling, and I'd call, 'Hey, Pappy, to him. After all, he was already 10 years old then - he was an 'old man.'" I feel so fortunate to have been such a close part of John Henry's racing career. Of course, I don't expect it will happen again to me in my lifetime, but it will for someone else. Records are set to be broken, and, especially with the size of today's purses, John Henry's money won will, undoubtedly, be surpassed by another horse some day...and, probably, in the not too distant future."

On November 1, 1986 - Breeders' Cup Day at Santa Anita - John Henry was grandly paraded down the stretch in fond farewell to his California fans and friends. Now, at age 20, he contentedly lives out his life amid the bluegrass of Kentucky, the place of his birth, as one of the greatest horses - if not, 'the' greatest horse - that ever

PACE 2000 Gets Underway

The Arcadia Police Department is excited to announce that its new community-oriented policing program, PACE 2000 (Peaceful Arcadia through Community Effort) is underway and gaining steam.

With the outstanding support of Santa Anita Fashion Park, construction has begun on the new PACE 2000 office near the Arcade-1 entrance of the mall. It is the hope of Arcadia Police Department that the office will be near completion in time for the PACE 2000 Kick-off celebration on Friday, Oct. 27, at Santa Anita Fashion Park.

For those of you who are asking yourself, "What is PACE 2000?" here is a brief explanation. It is a community-oriented policing program which reaches out to form a partnership with the community in an effort to reduce crime and violence. The first elements of PACE 2000 are focused on reducing substance abuse, violence and gangs among the youth in our community.

In order to address these issues, the police have established the Arcadia D.A.R.E. (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) program and Adopt-a-School program. In the future, they hope to establish a School Resource Officer program. PACE 2000 also supports the following programs: Arcadia Police Reserve Officers, Arcadia Police Explorer Post #101, Neighborhood Watch, Business Watch, Ham Watch, Police Chaplain Program, and the Civilian Volunteer Program.

As PACE 2000 continues to grow, the police anticipate adding a Retired Senior Volunteer Patrol program, a Citizen's Academy, patenting classes and other programs that enhance their interaction with the community.

The main goal of the PACE 2000 program is to develop long-range strategies to improve the quality of life for all who live, work and enjoy life in Arcadia. PACE 2000 is a flexible program, designed to fit the needs of the community.

Initially staffed by two Sergeants and two Officers, Arcadia Police Department's plan is to meet and interact with all of the community groups, civic organizations, schools, churchs, and business associations to identify the needs of the community through their perspective and assist in development of solutions.

An Arcadia Service for 50+

Forty is the old age of youth. Fifty is the youth of old age. So said Victor Hugo.

For those fortunate to have reached your second youthhood, Arcadia has a facility for you. Daytime hours at the Arcadia Community Center are reserved for adults 50 and older.

Activities abound. Everything from lunches that stretch your waist to lectures that stretch your mind. One such mind-stretcher is the monthly series of discussions offering "A Fresh Look at the Humanities."

This Tuesday morning series is cosponsored by Arcadia Senior Citizens Services and the University of Southern California's Emeriti College. Topics range from "Chinese Ghosts" to "Philosophers Looking at the Real World."

The next session has piqued my interest. It will be conducted by Dr. William Thomson, Professor Emeritus USC, and is titled, "Old Art, New Art, and the Idea of Evolution."

According to Dr. Thomson, the idea of evolution has been central to twentieth century thought. At times, it has been applied to conditions it did not fit. We often say something has "evolved" when all we are justified in saying is that is has endured changes over time.

Even the arts have not been immune to this heady notion of something being born, evolving as an organism, and then dying away. The concept is at times even expanded to suggest that some art objects survive the test of time because, in a very real Darwinian sense, "they are the fittest."

These transfers of a biological concept to literature, to painting and sculpture, and to music, have been especially popular since the turn of the century. Thus a wave of artists could claim that what may seem strange in their products is not strange at all: it is merely the result of a cosmic evolution in the particular art form itself.

Most people who vouch for this point of view would have us believe that the evolutionary process is moving this or that art every closer to perfection. In other words, new means better. The artist who creates the newest is also thereby the most worthy artist, he who is "keeping up with the cosmic Joneses."

Dr. Thomson feels that a careful look at the history of any fine art finds gaping holes in the transfer of this notion of biological evolution to art. It raises doubts about the kicker of continual improvement over the ages.

Dr. Thomson's primary interest and expertise is in music. He will draw most of his discussion from that art, both from music of our Western/European heritage and from the jazz and popular music of the past seven decades.

Sound interesting? Hope to see many of you there.

Tuesday, Sept. 26, 10:30 a.m.—12 noon, Arcadia Community Center, 365 Campus Drive. Admission: $2.

Pet Corner

This pet's for you . . .

Dear Dr. Tami,

I have a two year old female rabbit whose urine occasionally looks like it has blood in it. Is this normal?

Rabbit urine is usually cloudy yellow in color. However, occasionally they will produce pigments that change urine color to reddish-orange or brown which is normal. However, it is also possible that a urinary tract infection, uterine infection or uterine cancer can cause bloody urine which is abnormal. Your veterinarian will be able to tell by testing a urine sample whether or not there is blood in it.

Would you like to make a new friend?

Here I am!!! From the tip of my nose to the end of my fluffy tail, I'm 100% friendliness, love and playfulness! Right now, I seem to have lost my name (as well as my home) but I match the description of an approximately 4 year old male red and white tabby. I have guest accomodations at the Pasadena Human Society, located at 361 So. Raymond Ave. in Pasadena, just 3 blocks south of historic Old Town. My Kennel Ticket Number is AO25399. Please come visit me, I love visitors and making new friends.

Arcadia Resident Celebrates 104th Birthday

By Lynne Eodice

Ruth Thompson with her mother, Margery Hudson, and Margery's niece, Jenny Finger. Margery celebrated her 104th birthday on Sept. 14.

A lady usually doesn't tell her age, but in the case of Margery Hudson, her longevity is something to shout about.

On Thursday, Sept. 14, she celebrated her 104th birthday with her daughter, Ruth Thompson and her niece from South Dakota, Jenny Finger. On Friday, she enjoyed a somewhat bigger celebration with some special friends. "The Minister (Robert Thorpe of Arcadia Presbyterian Church) bought me a card, but he couldn't find anything for 104 years old," she exclaimed.

Margery is in good health, and lives with her daughter Ruth in Arcadia. She also has a son, five grandchildren and ten greatgrandchildren. When I met her on Thursday, we chatted about the fact that we're both Virgos (I also have a September birthday), and quite a few other things as well.

She was born in Brooklyn, and left New York when she was six for bonnie old England. "I remember the steamer, a cattle steamer with prize cattle. It had only first class passengers," she recalls.

Her childhood was spent primarily in Plainfield, New Jersey, a town that is no longer what it used to be, according to Margery. In 1914, she married William H. Hudson, who died in 1936. She recalls Plainfield as a wonderful place to live and raise her children.

After this she worked for quite awhile, first as a manager of an apartment building that had 84 units, and eventually on the now-famous Manhattan Project. "All we knew about it is that we were testing something," Margery says of the government project that turned out to be the development of the atomic bomb. Work ended on this project in 1945, when WWII was over.

Besides having a colorful working history, Margery is well-travelled. She's been to the Western U.S., Canada, Italy, Spain and England during her life.

This week on NBC's Today Show, she was honored by Willard Scott with a picture of her being shown during his Sept. 20 spot.

Here's to you, Margery, and more happy, healthy years!

Doris Selmer Named President of Miniature Book Society

Long-time Arcadia resident Doris Selmer has been elected president of the Miniature Book Society. The society, an international organization, boasts a membership of some 450 from fourteen countries and forty-three states. The members are collectors, publishers, artists, printers and dealers in the "mini-tomes" which mostly measure 3" x 3" or less.

Mrs. Selmer's election was announced at the society's annual meeting held as part of its yearly gathering, "Grand Conclave XIII" recently concluded at the Doubletree Hotel in Pasadena. The conclave consisted of special tours, meetings, an annual banquet and an all-day Book Fair where some 41 dealers sold their tiny treasures to members and the public.

Doris Selmer is a 35 year resident of Arcadia where she has been active in various community activities over the years, such as President of League of Women Voters, Chairman of the Library Board of Trustees, and President of the Friends of the Arcadia Public Library. She is a volunteer in the Arcadia Library where she has co-chaired the annual book sale for over twenty years. She was a member of the Arcadia Bicentennial Commission. She is a charter organizer of the Friends of the Braun Research Library at the Southwest Museum, and a board member of the Pasadena Affiliates Committee for the L. A. Philharmonic.

Needless to say, Mrs. Selmer is an avid collector of miniature books and has been a member of the society for some twelve years. She has served on its Board of Governors for the past four years. In 1993, Doris and her husband Jerry, wrote and published a miniature book "The First Museum of Los Angeles", a brief history of the Southwest Museum.

Monte Carlo Night: A Good Deal

Event co-chairs Marian Travisano and Nikki Poretta at the "Wheel of Fortune" during Monte Carlo Night.

The Arcadia Chamber of Commerce brought a bit of Las Vegas to Arcadia on Saturday night, Sept. 16, sponsoring a Monte Carlo Night at the Community Center.

South Bay Casino Rentals supplied dealers and the games; blackjack, craps, roulette, and a wheel of fortune. Many participants parlayed their initial "$100" playing chip into fortunes that were redeemable as tickets for the evening's grand prize drawing.

Besides winning hands, Monte Carlo Night proved to be a good deal for everyone. A delicious Monte Carlo Buffet and drinks were included in the cost of $35.

Sponsors for Saturday's event were: Gateway Mattress, Sunny Italy Restaurant, Marian Travisano, John Simmer State Farm, Hortense 1st Ave. Florist, Ralphs Florist, Monty & Fred Lindsey, and BFI.

Many people felt that Monte Carlo Night provided them with a good opportunity to learn games that are too fast-paced to learn in Las Vegas. And judging by the repeat business that South Bay Casino Rentals is enjoying, this type of event is proving to be very popular. "It's our fourth party here," said South Bay owner, Ron Varnell.

Barbara McKinnon Named Teacher of the Year

Teacher of the Year, Barbara McKinnon, with School Board President, Mike Lamb.

By Lynne Eodice

A teacher at Holly Avenue's year-round school, Barbara McKinnon has been chosen as 1996 Teacher of the Year. She was honored at the Governing Board meeting of Sept. 12.

Dr. Terry Towner, superintendent of schools for AUSD, said that it was a "unanimous decision" by the board in choosing Ms. McKinnon. Although she clearly is a most dedicated instructor, McKinnon admits that teaching didn't always come so easily for her.

In her professional biography, she says, "I was not a natural teacher," looking back 25 years to her first year in teaching. "Developing an understanding of the curriculum, class management, and organization were my strengths, but I did not initially relate on a close personal level with my students. After recognizing and responding to that need, I was able to begin making a positive impact on the students who entered my classroom. As I relaxed into teaching, I began to enjoy the students and experience the tremendous rewards of being a valuable force in their academic, social, and emotional growth."

Additionally, she feels a commitment to Arcadia that has been developed through many years of living, schooling, and working in the community. "I grew up in Arcadia and am a product of Arcadia schools. In fact, I am currently teaching at the same elementary school that I attended as a child," she states. She has worked in other school districts and other states, which has resulted in a stronger appreciation of Arcadia as a community.

Ms. McKinnon involves her students in self-assessment and personal goal setting. "When students set goals that are important to them, they are more apt to reach them." She encourages students to be active learners as opposed to passive learners, who merely sit back and accept information. "My efforts are acknowledged when I see the self-reliance growing within each of my students."

Hospital Auxiliary Enjoys Inspirational Speaker

By Lynne Eodice

On Monday morning, the Methodist Hospital Women's Auxiliary held their monthly meeting. The speaker for their program, Fay Angus, proved to be a most inspiring individual.

A popular speaker and accomplished author, Ms. Angus was born in Australia, but raised in Shanghai, China. During WWII, she and her mother spent two and a half years in a Japanese internment camp. This experience has had a profound effect on her life, and now, on her listeners at the many talks that she gives around the country.

She currently writes for a publication called Guideposts and has had several books published, including How to do Everything Right and Live to Regret It. Today, she lives with her husband and family in Sierra Madre.

"God knows I tried!" is the opening sentence in her book, and one that she lives by, she told the audience on Monday. During the bleak years of her imprisonment, she also learned to live by the proverb, "Faith is the bird that sings to greet the dawn while it is still dark."

Fay Angus, popular author & speaker, signs one of her books after speaking to the Methodist Hospital Women's Auxiliary. In the foreground is an old stuffed toy that was part of her life during her years in an internment camp in China.

Weaving humor into some very serious subjects, Angus imparted much wisdom onto the Auxiliary members that morning. She also elicited both laughter and tears at times during her inspirational speech.

An armband and an old stuffed toy, "dog Toby," from her internment camp years made their appearance with her that day. In speaking of those years, she stated, "I know what it's like to be humiliated, starved and imprisoned as the enemy. But I also know what it's like to be liberated as the enemy!"

The way that she found faith in a very dark situation was both touching and thought-provoking. Angus described the time that God made his presence known to her, a situation that others may be inspired by.

During her experience in this prison camp, she learned many things, both spiritual and humorous, that influence her life today. For example, living in cramped quarters with 59 other women taught her to value her privacy. Eating unsanitary food taught her to eat everything. ("I'm a great dinner guest!").

She also was unable to take a bath or shower for the entire time of her imprisonment. "Today I'm married to a Water Conservation Engineer," she said.

Her three steps to a fulfilling life are, "Something to do, someone to love, and something to look forward to." In conclusion, she discussed turning points in people's lives and the difficulty that some people have in making these changes.

Ms. Angus frequently speaks at various venues. For those who are unfortunate enough to miss one of these appearances, her books are available at major bookstores locally.

BMW: A History of Excellence

By Lynne Eodice

BMW has maintained a reputation for producing an automobile of superior quality throughout the years, and this tradition is definitely alive and well at Assael BMW in Monrovia.

Freeway close, just off the Mountain Ave. exit, "We're one of the largest BMW dealerships in Southern California," says Greg Dickson, general sales manager. In addition to offering an excellent product, Assael BMW has a great service department and a vast selection of parts, according to Dickson. "Customer satisfaction is our #1 goal."

Assael BMW also boasts a large selection of models, ranging from the affordable 318 TI series (starting at $19,900), on up to the 740 series, which has a new body style this year. This spring, BMW will introduce the Z3 Roadster, an upscale sporty model that will be featured in the new "007" films. "James Bond has always driven an Astin Martin—until now," says Dickson.

General Sales Manager of Assael BMW, Greg Dickson, in the showroom with some of the 1995 models.

Servicing a BMW is not as expensive as many might expect. "It's equivalent to (servicing costs) of Japanese import cars," according to Dickson.

Dennis Assael is the owner of Assael Motors in Monrovia, and has been a local dealer for 22 years. In addition to BMW, Assael's product lines are varied: Mitsubishi, Mazda, Subaru, Hundai and Buick.

Dickson, who attended Maranatha High School during his Sophomore year, considers auto sales "A fun business." He encourages those in the market for a new (or used) car to consider BMW. At Assael, the sales personnel can offer great leasing or purchase plans that can make this dream car a reality.

Methodist Hospital Employees Surpass Fundraising Goal

Employees of Methodist Hospital raised more than $310,000, surpassing their goal of $200,000, for the construction of a new Patient Tower according to Dennis Lee, hospital president. Their collective contributions and pledges bring the total money raised over the $6 million mark, leaving less than $2 million of the hospital's goal.

Spearheading the drive were five hospital employees: Arcadia Apodaca, Amy Gigliobianco, Colleen Garnier, Mary Shumway and Sue Kaminski. Under their leadership, more than 550 employees participated in the campaign and made donations in one of three ways.

Some gave by pledging a select amount per pay period for three years. Others donated a onetime lump sum, and still others gave by joining the foundation's "Give One Club."

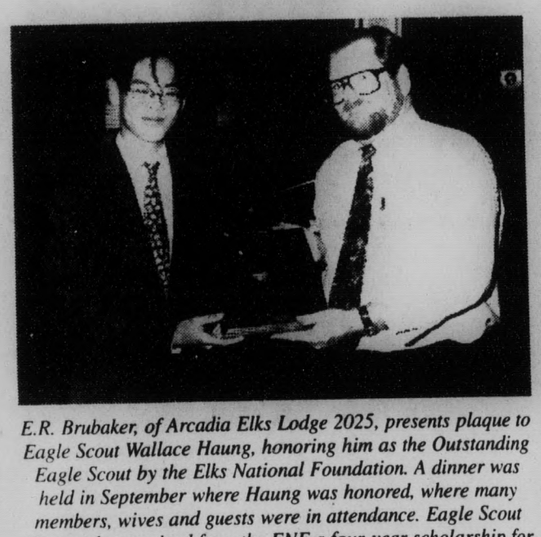

Employees who joined the "Give One Club" will donate one percent of their salary that will be deducted over 26 pay periods per year for the next three years. These employees will be recognized with a donor recognition plaque which will be displayed in the new lobby of Methodist Hospital.

All participation in the employee fundraising campaign was strictly voluntary, and all pledges and gifts were confidential.

Construction of the hospital's new Patient Tower is expected to begin early next year. Completion for the new six-floor, 130,000 square foot building is expected for the fall of 1997.

The new Patient Tower, with facilities for 108 beds, will replace the current East Nursing Wing which opened in 1957 and suffered more than $300,000 in damage in the 1991 Sierra Madre Earthquake. This restructuring will actually reduce the number of patient beds by more than 100 in response to increased outpatient care. Methodist Hospital is currently a 347-bed hospital.

The Artist's Life in Sierra Madre

By Bliss

Sierra Madre often cites its artists colony as a primary attraction. True enough, the many artists here definitely enhance the color and quality of local life. But how do they survive? In such a small town, how can so many find a secure financial base for their work? And how does a younger generation of artists survive as it struggles to define not only its art but also its identity?

In times past, famed artist Alfred Dewey found inspiration in scenes of local life for beautiful paintings. Struggling writer Michael Blake found peace in the canyon to write his novel Dances with Wolves, the source for the now-classic film. David Darbyshire has lived and worked in Sierra Madre virtually all his life, building an excellent reputation for his paintings. Other artists can be found right behind the counter of your favorite shop or gas station. Take Michael De'ak, for instance. Friendly Sierra Madre Post Office worker by day, nights often find him playing jazz piano in area clubs with singer Diane Dee, his partner in On the Wing. He is one of many local artists who live dual existences.

Chris Hafele's "day gig" is at the Grahams' Texaco station on Baldwin Ave. Hafele is a rock guitarist. How does he support his musical habits? "Odd jobs and roommates!" he laughed. He used to live in the canyon, but had to leave when a decision to focus more time and energy on his old band decreased his cash flow. "But I'm looking for another place in town now" for himself and his pet pig. He supplements his income with occasional jobs in recording engineering. "When I do that, I make good money."

Devin Thomas, a well-known keyboardist and composer, owns Southwest Sound, a recording studio on Baldwin Ave. He made a choice to focus on recording so he could be truer to his music. "It's when you try to have the art support you that you run into problems," he said. "If you play all the time, you can support yourself—if you play other people's music [in cover bands]. But I look at that as a dead end ... You've got to pick what you want to do, so I picked recording." He still performs occasionally with friends, or to promote albums produced by Natural Elements Records, the company he runs with guitarists Jim Stubblefield and Matt Levonian. But his primary source of income is the studio, which allows him to stay involved in music every day. While rents and mortgages might be cheaper elsewhere, he chooses to stay here. Asked if Sierra Madre's much-vaunted peaceful atmosphere has influenced his art, he speculated, "If I lived in New York City, maybe I'd be doing punk rock, but instead I'm doing instrumental music."

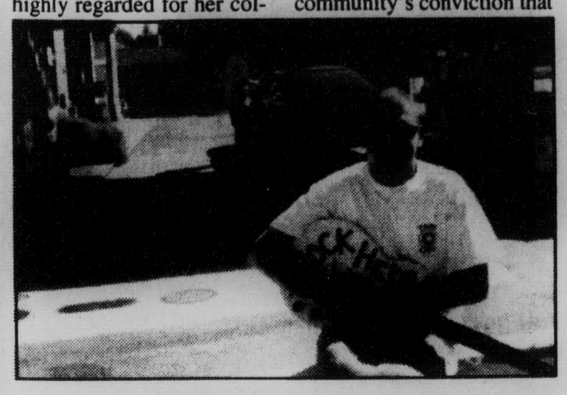

"It's like Mayberry here," Hafele explained, citing Sierra Madre's appeal to him and why he has chosen to stay when many artist friends have left for the Bay area or the Big Apple. "The streets are dead at 8:00. You can walk down, have a cup of joe somewhere, go to the park, kick back ... it's real mellow."

Actress/poet Gisele Frazeur is currently rehearsing for Critic's Choice, the next Sierra Madre Playhouse production. It was winning a role in another SMP production a few years ago that convinced her to move here. She told her best friend her life would change if she won the role in California Suite at the Playhouse—which she did. "I can't even explain it to you," Frazeur laughed. "I said, 'I don't care what it takes, I'm moving here!'" She said The Sierra Madre News reminded her of her old hometown paper in Fredonia, NY, and she fell in love with the local character, "the tremendous amount of artistic activity," and Sierra Madre's community spirit. Not only did she feel safe and at home, she was newly inspired: once here, she began to write poetry. "I had only written a play before, which was produced here and in New York. But never poetry. I wasn't even aware of wanting to be a writer before moving to Sierra Madre." She has since been published in seven poetry journals, and gave a successful reading at the Sierra Madre Library in June.

But life-transforming creative inspiration does not necessarily translate into dollars in the bank. Frazeur's future is uncertain. Her job at the Ahmanson Theatre box office is slated to end soon. She is studying for future work as a technical writer. She meets with other struggling actors once a month to share job tips and support. Meanwhile, she keeps rent payments down by sharing a house with two roommates.

"Depending on what kind of art you do," Thomas said, "artists almost always have to be in the city [to be successful]. If you open up a studio in a small town in the Midwest, you won't make enough money to live. It's the same with ceramics, etc., unless you have an outlet—a patron, government grants, or you do commercial art."

Pat Spencer moved to Sierra Madre with her husband "because it appealed to both of us for its friendliness, and we're close to all of our activities." The local art scene was an extra bonus. Pat is highly regarded for her colored pencil drawings, and she also enjoys teaching at Creative Arts Group when she isn't doing art shows around California or other states. "I just love being here. But I wish that some of the local merchants would develop more of an interest in the local artists, and show their pieces on their walls. A few do, but ... it's one avenue of drawing people into the town, being a small community of artists. I just think it would be wonderful." She has noticed "a lot of wall space" available in local shops, and believes that such a show of local support would help boost Sierra Madre's reputation as an artists' enclave in the eyes of the outside world. "It presents an opportunity to make our community known for something other than our vine and our rose float."

Busloads of aspiring artists daily heed the siren lure of Hollywood, just a short drive away, while Sierra Madre's community of artists quietly strengthens its roots. Frazeur, Hafele and Thomas all know artists who live in Hollywood for the proximity to work contacts, but they don't experience the quality of life and resultant creative inspiration available here. Sierra Madre's appeal may lie in its unique combination of Mother Nature and the community's conviction that its artists do, indeed, give the town extra dimensions. "There seems to be a feeling in the country that artists aren't important, that we don't perform a function," Thomas commented. "But that's not true. Artists give us something to aspire to other than building another mini mall. They try to raise the consciousness of the population. Why is that a bad thing?"

Actress/poet Gisele Frazeur is currently rehearsing for Critic's Choice, the next Sierra Madre Playhouse production.

Frazeur summed up by saying, "There's something enchanting about this place. I would never leave here, now that I know the people and my fellow artists here."

Residents wishing to support local artists may want to view art works hanging in Sierra Madre coffeehouses, restaurants, or salons—and perhaps urge other businesses to do likewise. For information on poetry readings, please call the Sierra Madre Library (355-7186) or Baba's House (355-1491). The Sierra Madre Playhouse can be reached at 355-4318 for a list of upcoming productions.

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of: EDWARD B. HUTCHINSON

A PETITION has been filed by EDWIN R. MCINTYRE in the Superior Court of California, County of Los Angeles.

THE PETITION requests that EDWIN R. MCINTYRE be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The WILL and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on September 29, 1995 at 10:00 A.M. in Dept. B located at 300 E. Walnut St. Pasadena CA 91101.

IF YOU OBJECT TO the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 9100 of the California Probate Code. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a formal Request for Special Notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in section 1250 of the California Probate Code. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Beware The Seven Common Errors Of Wood-Based Siding Application

Many problems concerning wood-based siding are not caused by the siding itself, but can be traced to seven common errors of wood-based siding applications. All gaps around doors, windows and other wall openings should be filled with long-life caulk as a barrier against water entry. Maintaining a six inch clearance between the siding and the finished landscape grade, will protect the siding from excess water damage.

Wood composite siding and other wood-based siding materials have been used extensively for residential construction throughout the United States for decades. Wood products represent affordable cladding material that has allowed the price of homes to be within reach of many market segments. When these products are properly installed and finished by a qualified builder or installer, and receive normal homeowner maintenance, they will perform as designed and look great for many years.

Many reported problems concerning wood-based siding are not caused by the product itself, but can be traced to Seven Common Errors of Wood-Based Siding Application. By avoiding these pitfalls, builders and installers can prevent costly call backs, homeowner complaints and wasted time.

Builders and siding installers can avoid the Seven Common Errors of Wood-Based Siding Application by following manufacturer's installation guidelines and paying special attention to these areas:

1. Flashing–Properly installing simple metal flashing over windows, doors and other horizontal surfaces prevents water from penetrating the exterior wall of the home.
2. Caulking–All gaps around doors, windows and other wall openings should be filled with a long-life caulk as a barrier against water entry.
3. Painting–Two coats of high quality, low- or no-chalking acrylic latex paint will protect the siding from the weather. It is particularly important that paint is properly applied to the bottom edge as well as the face of the siding.
4. Roof/Wall Detail–A two-inch clearance should be left between the roof and siding where the roof abuts a vertical wall, and the gap should be flashed to divert rain water.
5. Concrete Contact–An air space or vapor retardant membrane must be kept between wood or wood composite siding and masonry to prevent deterioration of the siding. Siding must not come in direct contact with masonry.
6. Grade Clearance–Maintaining a minimum six-inch clearance between the siding and finished landscape grade, will protect the siding.
7. Rain Gutters–According to HUD Minimum Property Standards, rain gutters must be installed on any single story home with less than 12 inch overhang.

These installation guidelines must be followed up by periodic homeowner maintenance. Masonite Building Products Group has developed a booklet covering homeowner maintenance. To receive your copy, write to: Siding Care Kit, c/o Masonite Customer Service, Department F, P.O. Box 4032, Monroe, Louisiana 71211.

By Al Elby

Pastor was sermonizing about the Beatitudes in the fifth chapter of the Gospel of Matthew. He specifically dealt with the one that stated that "Blessed (or happy) are the meek, for they will inherit the earth." What Pastor immediately cleared up was the misconception that meekness was confused or analogous with weakness. Meekness is not a deficiency of courage. It is not being spineless or cowardly but is manifested in ones humility. Moses was a very meek person (Num. 12:3) and Jesus spoke of Himself as being meek and low in heart (Matt. 11:29). Now if ever there were two men who were the antithesis of being ineffectual, powerless, ineffective and weak these two men fit the bill.

Scripturally, being meek is compatible with possessing great strength and power. "For God's Spirit does not make us timid: instead His Spirit fills us with power, love and self-control" (2Tim. 1:7). So when Jesus said,"Blessed are the meek" in reality, He was saying blessed are the powerful- but power tempered by love and self-control. This is contrary to the ways of the world, which venerates power, but power that is oppressive, self-serving and unloving.

Now which would you rather be, a Rambo or a Moses? The Rambo syndrome represents violence and disdain, whereas. Moses represents a loving yet resolute yieldedness that manifests commitment to God. Even with all his muscles, it's Moses for me.

SERVICE TIME Saturday at 6:30 p.m.
Sunday at 8, 9:30 and 11 a.m.
September 23 & 24, 1995

Pastor Anderson will be preaching from Acts 16:16-40 on "One Wonderful Night in Jail." This impact of the Gospel of Jesus Christ is "good news" for people who are in bondage to darkness and long for release, but it is "bad news" for people who profit from the powers of darkness and put other people into bondage. The incident in our text tells us of demonic powers in a slave girl to predict the future. The slave girl who was set free from the spiritual bondage of the fortune telling spirit, could no longer bring a profit to her owners. The effect of this new freedom for the girl, stimulated anger on the part of her owners who made money from her fortune telling.

Again we must recognize today that not every one will be happy with the Gospel of Jesus Christ. There are many people getting very rich on practices which the Bible calls sin. When people hear the message, repent, and are set free, it will bring on the wrath of those who profit from the bondage, whether it is prostitution, drunkenness, addictions to drugs, pornography, killing unborn babies, or other violations to the commandments of God. With a growing number of people, the Gospel of Jesus Christ is becoming more of a threat than a blessing because of the impact of this message as it changes lives and set captives free.

Forgive Us Our Trespasses

by Fr. David E. Rosage

Realizing the infinite mercy and compassion of our loving Father, we come before Him, like the prodigal son, the sinful woman, the tax-collector, confident that He will forgive us. Before we can honestly and sincerely beg for forgiveness, we, like David in Psalm 51, must humbly adknowledge our sinfulness, express our sorrow, and pray for forgiveness.

Sin is not a comfortable word in our times. Some try to explain it away as a psychological need without which we could not be a fulfilled person; others think of only the grave offenses as sins, such as murder, adultery, stealing, but overlook other ways we can depart from the way Jesus laid down for our daily living. We need to ask ourselves if we have always been honest, loving, prayerful, or even been judgmental, critical, unkind, self-centered, etc.

As our Redeemer, Jesus fulfills a very special role in the process of reconciliation. By His redemptive death, Jesus atones for the sinfulness of mankind, but we may often wonder if our sins are included in this universal forgiveness. Aware of our misgivings, Jesus instituted the Sacrament of Reconciliation in which we meet Him personaly to receive His forgiving, healing love which brings us pardon and peace.

We find great comfort in the many occasions in the Gospel when Jesus forgave sinners because they had faith in Him and humbly sought His forgiveness. To the sinful woman He said: "Your sins are forgiven. Your faith has saved you; go in peace." (Lk 7:48) To the paralyzed man carried to Him, Jesus said: "Your sins are forgiven" as He healed Him both physically and spiritually. (Mk 2:5) What joy He brought to the woman taken adultery: "Neither do I condemn you. Go and from now on do not sin anymore". When the self-righteous scribes and Pharisees criticized Jesus for eating with tax-collectors and sinners. He Promptly informed them: "I did not come to call the righteous, but sinners". (Mk 2:17)

Does Jesus continue to forgive and heal in the same way in our times? Scripture assures us" "Jesus is the same yesterday, today, and forever." (Heb 13:8)

La Salle Blows Out Marshall Fundamental

The La Salle Lancers racked up an impressive 53-6 victory over Marshall Fundamental. Said Coach Lew Stueck, an early candidate for understatement of the year, "We played well."

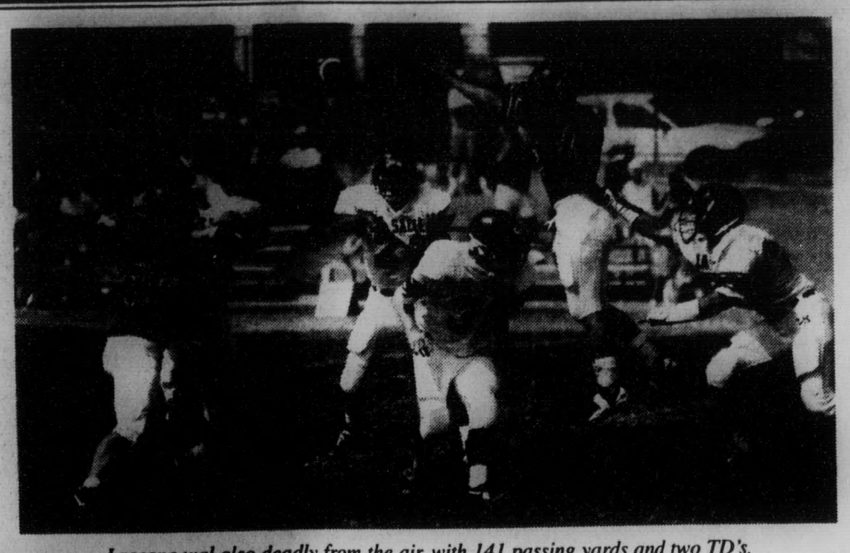

Stueck stressed the blocking as being the cornerstone of the offense, saying, "It's a team effort. We got outstanding blocking from everybody. Brian Robertson, Elvis Mejorado, Anthony Tavera, Ben Pirih, Billy Alexander, Ruben Vasquez, David Roh, Mike McNamara, all those guys. Ryan Garcia, John Otten, Travis Ingrao. It all starts with the blocking."

Rafael Lazcano racked up 250 all-purpose yards, rushing for 109, while passing for 141 more. Lazcano scored two touchdowns himself, and threw two touchdown passes. Ryan Garcia ran for 88 yards on seven carries with two rushing touchdowns, and added a 78 yard touchdown reception. Travis Ingrao picked up 51 yards on seven carries and scored a touchdown.

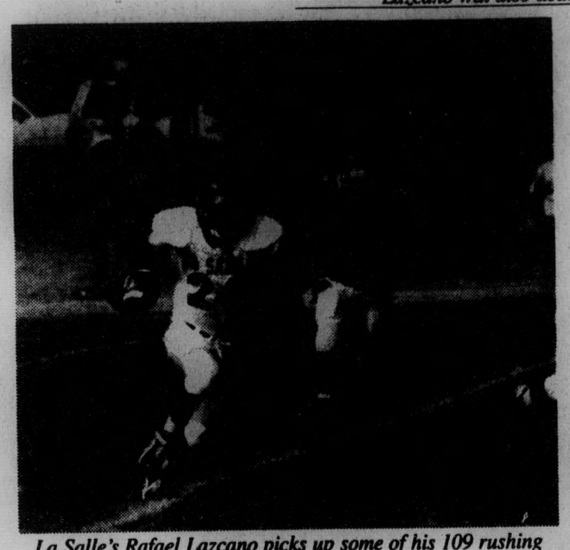

Stueck also credited the improved play of his defensive squad, especially the linebacking crew of John Maust, John Wickhem, Danny Sheridan, and John Otten.

La Salle will get a bigger test against Cerritos Valley Christian this weekend at Monrovia High School. Valley Christian is ranked #5 in their division, and #4 in state. Says Stueck, "We'll know a lot more about this football team after Saturday."

La Salle 16 21 16 0-53
Marshall 6 0 0 0-6

Lazcano wal also deadly from the air, with 141 passing yards and two TD's.

La Salle's Rafael Lazcano picks up some of his 109 rushing yards.

Pasadena Loses Heartbreaker

The Pasadena Bulldogs came back from a 21 point deficit, took a lead, and lost on the last play of the game.

Trailing 21-0 in the third, things looked hopeless for the Bulldogs. Chidi Iwuoma started things rolling, however, taking a kickoff at the Pasadena one yard line and returning it 66 yards to the Beverly Hills 33, leading to a Jason Flether touchdown run. The next Pasadena possession saw a 70 yard drive end in a Karl Hallie fumble at the one yard line. The Bulldogs turned it into a positive, however, when Terrnece Hampton and Darren Taylor combined to stick Mike Nash in the backfield for a safety, making the score 21-9. Things still looked hopeless, however, but when Steve Scipio ran an interception back 39 yards for a touchdown, the score was 21-16 with some time left.

The defense held, and a 25 yard punt return by Iwuoma started Pasadena off at midfield with 4:04 left. With the scent of victory in the air, Jason Fletcher capped a drive with a two yard touchdown run with 24 seconds left, putting Pasadena on top, 22-21.

With the game seemingly over, Pasadena sent a squib kickoff, a low, bouncing kick designed for low return yardage. The kick went too far, however, and Brandon Nash scooped it up at the Beverly Hills 20, returning it 80 yards for the winning touchdown, and an improbable end to an improbable game.

Perhaps more improbable was Pasadena coach Jack Loos' reaction to the loss: "It was the best thing that could have happened to us. We have a young team, and they were cocky after the first week's win. They know they're beatable, and in practice, I can already tell that they've matured."

The balanced rushing attack had Iwuoma, Hallie, and Fletcher all averaging over five yards per carry, with Taylor getting 67 yards on five receptions. Iwuoma had kickoff returns of 63 and 40 yards, and punt returns of 25, 17, and 19 yards.

Arcadia Shuts Out San Marino

Sultan Abdul-Malik paced the Arcadia Apaches on both ends of the field in a 14-0 win over San Marino. Abdul-Malik had 100 yards rushing, including a two yard touchdown run. On defense, Abdul-Malik's interception return was good for the game's only other touchdown.

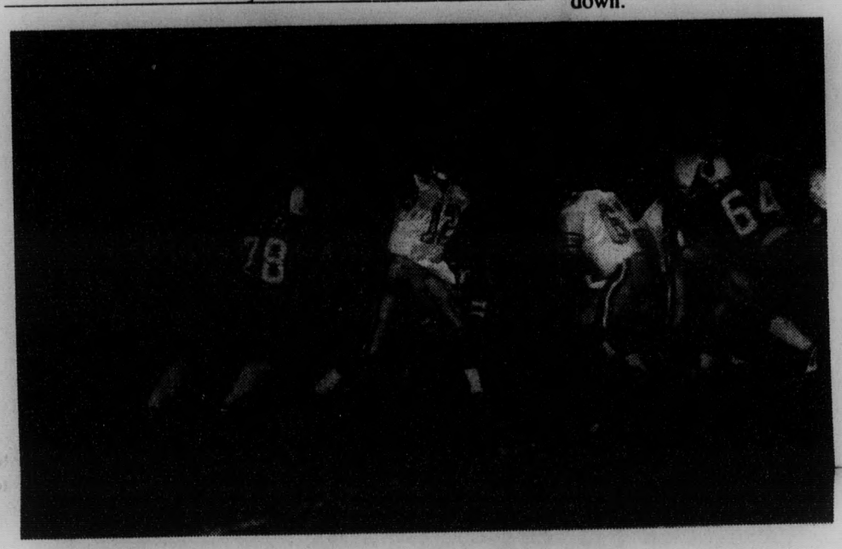

"We struggled a bit offensively, but the defense made some big plays," said coach John DiMalante. The San Marino defense keyed on tailback Mathis ward, slowing his production down.

San Marino got inside the Arcadia 10 yard line three times, but came up empty each time. Part of that was the strong up-front defense of Brian Reichert, who had three sacks in the game. Furthermore, in addition to Abdul-Malik's interception, Demario Franklin, Chris Gronau, and Dennis George each picked off San Marino passes.

Says DiMalante, "We have to accelerate the learning curve, and we need to throw the ball better so teams can't take us out of our game by focusing on Mathis, but the kids played hard."

Arcadia moves to 2-0 on the year.

Maranatha Volleyball Moves to 2-0

The Maranatha volleyball team, ranked number three in CIF, won matches over Mayfield and Ontario Christian to start off the non-league schedule.

Middle hitter Kerri Rivas had 14 kills and five blocks against Mayfield, while Jennifer Fryar added 10 kills and five blocks. The four-game victory was by a score of 15-5, 11-15, 15-13, 15-9.

Sibyl Polanco led the way against Ontario Christian. Polanco had 11 kills in the three-game sweep. Maranatha prevailed 15-9, 15-1, 15-3.

Coach Kris Pinard says that the team is "doing really well...we're improving every time we play."

A status update on setter Racquel Bettencourt is that her knee is improving, and she is expected to return halfway through league competition.

Maranatha Cross Country

The cross country season opened for the Maranatha Minutemen with a competitive double-dual meet against Pasadena Poly and La Canada. The boys lost 38-17 to La Canada and 32-24 to Poly.

Maranatha depth almost saw them through against Poly, but the top-two finishers both on Poly made the difference. James Avis led the way for the Minutemen with a time of 19:28. Mike Quezada was right behind with a 19:46, as were Paul Miser (20:01) and Brian Abe (20:51).

The girls were even closer, losing to Poly 30-26, and to La Canada, 29-26. Maranatha's Tracy Maxwell was second overall at 22:58, and Gabbie Lockwood, Pearlin Vyas, and Amanda Doan all finished in the top 10 at 24:52, 25:25, and 25:26, respectively.

The girls finished eighth overall in last Saturday's "Rosemead invitational." Tracy Maxwell's 20:25 was good for ninth in the Junior/Senior division (with over 100 in the race). Gabbie Lockwood came in 20th at 21:22. Linda Quintana ran a 21:35, good for 24th, and Perlin Vyas' 22:32 was enough for 39th. Rebecca Stapleton's time of 22:43 was 27th best in the Frosh/Soph division.

Some young runners did very well for the boys. With over 80 runners in each race, Ricky Schaeffer's 16:51 put him in 23rd among the seniors. James Avis ran a 17:09, good for 9th among sophomores, while Paul Miser took 4th for freshmen, at 17:29. Brian Ave's time of 17:44 was enough for 18th in the sophomore race.

Apaches Volleyball Wins Two 5-Game Matches

How good are the Arcadia Apaches? Well, if you ask coach Chuck Freberg, they're "probably the best team in the valley." What does Chuck Freberg know? Well, he's been at Arcadia since 1982, and the Apaches are going for their 15th consecutive league championship, so maybe he DOES know something about talented volleyball teams.

Missing way too many serves cost the Apaches a three-game match against highly regarded Royal.

The Apaches came back to win a couple of thrillers. Against Temple City, Arcadia won 15-10, 15-17, 15-3, 6-15, 15-6. The match against San Gabriel was even more of a nail-biter, with Arcadia spotting San Gabriel the first two games, then storming back for an 11-15, 9-15, 15-13, 16-14, 18-16 victory.

First team All-League players Misty and Michelina Rice are back, as is returning varsity setter Jennifer Cruz. Sophomore Emily Kennedy is up from last year's JV squad. Courtney Collins and Camille Warren are the outside hitters, with Mackenzie Brook and Sara Soderman in the middle. Alice Chen is up and "already contributing for us," says Freberg. Today at 3:45, Arcadia hosts Notre Dame Academy.

AYSO Girls' Division 4

The Vortex started the season with a 2-1 victory over the Tornadoes, behind goals from Heather Furuya and Theresa Moody. Courtney Hodge scored for the Tornadoes, and goalie Caroline Hugar kept the game close with some great saves.

The Dream Team defeated the Panthers by a 4-2 margin. Wendy Sawyer and Carolyn Sam each scored two goals for the Dream Team. For the Panthers, Katie Cornwall scored on as assist from Lauren Herman, and Reena Magsarili scored on an assist from Shannon Thomas.

The Mischenko twins, Katie and Becky, each got an assist from Amy Gregg to lead Footloose to a 2-0 shutout over the Vortex.

Kelly Reid and Christina Faraone scored to pace the Strikers to a 2-0 win over the Raptors.

Courtney Hodge had a hat trick to help the Tornadoes overcome the Panthers, 6-2. Adrienne Stanners, Katie Helgott, and Heather Lacey also scored for the Tornadoes, and Amy Thomas and Helgott had assists.

The White Sharks took down the Gray Sharks, 2-1. Linsay Wright and Vanessa Lopez scored for the winners, with Julie Chung picking up an assist and Andrea Edmonds playing a superb game in the goalie's box.

The Hurricanes got goals from Melissa Given and Michele Toyoshima to defeat the Dream Team, 2-0.

Lancers Lose Tight Tennis

The La Salle Lancers tennis team dropped a couple of tight, competitive matches, and split two one-sided ones.

Pasadena Poly defeated La Salle by a 14-4 margin, with many of the lost sets going by margins of 3-6 or closer. Becky Sheridan led the way with two points, a 6-2 win over Diana Kim and a 7-6 win over Angela Kim. Julie Vasquez added a point, as did the doubles tandem of Cindy Nuccio and Jennifer Senechal, 6-4 winners over Poly's Natalie Haden and Katie MacKenzie.

La Salle's match against Temple City was even closer, finishing in an 11-7 score. Becky Sheridan again picked up two points, with a 6-2 score against Elaine Pehilivanos, and a 6-4 win agaisnt Husan Chow. Ashley Pond split two matches, defeating Chow, 6-3, and narrowly dropping a 4-6 set to Chow. An injury forced a default by Pond against Tina Ko.

Julie Vazquez and P.J.Jackson shut out Temple City's Diane Vivona and Jennifer Lee, 6-0, and narrowly missed adding a second point against Temple City's #1 doubles tandem of Vivian Khalil and Tia Syarif, 5-7.

Jennifer Senechal and Cindy Nuccio beat Khalil and Syarif, 7-5, and also beat Cam Nguyen and Regina Chu, 6-4. Only a 5-7 loss to Vivona and Lee stopped a sweep by the Lancer pair. Kathleen Polenzani and Kathryn Rath added a point with a 6-3 win over Vivona and Lee.

La Salle was shut out by perennial powerhouse Brentwood, but matches against teams like Brentwood will only serve as learning experiences for when the league schedule rolls around.

The Lancers shut out Pasadena, 18-0. Sheridan cruised through three sets, dropping only a single game. Pond was extended to 6-4 against Nidia Salas, but won her other two mathes by 6-1 margins, while Mary Jo Boyd won by the same 6-1, 6-0, 6-0 margin as Sheridan.

Vazquez and Jackson went 6-0, 6-0, 6-1. Senechal and Nuccio only dropped two games of twenty, winning 6-0, 6-2, 6-0, and Polenzani and Rath won 6-1, 6-1, 6-0. All told, the Lancers won 108 games in the match, while dropping only 13.

Apache Water Polo

The Arcadia Apaches have defeated San Marino and Monrovia to move to 2-4 on the year, after dropping four matches at the Valencia tournament. Fourth year coach Janice Clark called the wins a "team effort."

Last year's squad went 9-10. Five varsity players have returned, and while six were lost, "Six good ones moved up," says Clark.

Clark will be relying most heavily on Co-Captains Steve Podosek and Howard Chen, as well as on Bryant Romo and starting goalie Johnny Lee.

The San Marino game was a 13-8 victory for Arcadia, while the Apaches beat Monrovia by a 17-8 margin.
